Ken Solis, MD, MA

Community Volunteer

Ken is an ER physician who graduated from the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and has a Master's in bioethics from the Medical College of Wisconsin. Ken became interested in invasive plant species when he discovered that buckthorn trees, garlic mustard and other invasive plant species were prevalent not only in his small forested yard, but also along the street sides and parks themselves. From 1994 to 1995 he surveyed and documented the presence and density of invasive plants in over 40 parks to make the case that they had to be addressed – or risk forever losing the native plant community. The Park People learned of his surveys shortly thereafter and began the volunteer "Weed-Out!" program to try to control invasives in various parks. He was also instrumental in promoting the creation of a park system's "natural areas manager" position and staff so that these areas would receive the professional attention that they deserved. Ken is also interested in "Big History" (history extending back to the Big Bang) and is most well-known for being a "freestyle" jump rope pioneer/expert who has been on national TV, set 2 Guinness World Records, did 100's of shows, and wrote instructional books and videos.
